Session predicted to be controversial and busy

With billion-dollar surplus, money will be key legislative issue

Money — how to spend rather than how to get more of it — will be the major problem facing Canyon's veteran and freshman legislators when they join their counterparts from across the state next week in Austin to open the bi-annual legislative session.

State Sen. Max Sherman and Rep. Bob Simpson, both of Amarillo, have spent a good part of their time the past few weeks preparing themselves for their roles in the coming session, slated to be one of major issues.

For Sherman, a veteran senator, the legislative session which begins Jan. 14 promises to be one of the most controversial, if not one of the busiest, encompassing some major problem areas which legislators are almost certainly going to have to deal with in a short period of time.

For Simpson, elected as Randall County's representative in the Texas House last November, the session will be more than simply a time for learning and adjustment. The neophyte legislator plans to take an active part in the formation of laws for the state.

There seems to be little question among Sherman, Simpson and various local officials that money will be the big problem in the coming term.

"The big issue," Sherman said, "is how do you spend the $1.5 billion surplus."

The proposals already being talked around the state leave no question, either, that the problem will not be spending all the available money but how best to spend it for which programs.

Sherman anticipates that a major opportunity for spending will come through discussions on a package for financing public schools in Texas. Indeed, in the past two years various commissions and study committees have been formulating specific legislative proposals aimed at the session which convenes Jan. 14, proposals which would revamp the way school districts finance a child's education and the way the state participates in that financing.

Several groups interested in education have worked up such proposals, including the Texas State Teachers Association, the Texas Education Agency and even a special task force in the Governor's office.

Sherman said the various groups have been holding special meetings in Austin apparently with the aim of presenting a single educational financing package.

Coupled with the educational financing legislation, Sherman also expects legislative proposals on property tax reform. A legislative committee has been studying the problem since the last session adjourned and has held public hearings throughout the state.

Sherman said the bill which appears to be the most likely to be presented calls for county-wide appraisal of property with the county tax office becoming the central clearinghouse for appraisals and all other governmental units in the county using those appraisals to figure taxes.

The legislation is designed to end the kind of differences in tax appraisals which exist, for example, in Randall County where each taxing jurisdiction has its own appraised value by which it taxes property.

One proposal expected to receive some debate during the session on the tax appraisal system will call for regional or state offices to set property appraisals to assure equity, Sherman said.

Another major item which will face the legislature is constitutional revision, according to the senator.

Sherman said he has agreed to sponsor a bill calling for another constitutional convention to be held in 1976. This convention would be attended by lay delegates elected from each congressional district, though, he said, and would begin meeting in April of 1976.

He said the bill has the support of the lieutenant governor, Bill Hobby, and the present speaker of the House, Price Daniel Jr.

Even though he anticipates the bill might pass muster, Sherman also predicts efforts by legislators to revitalize portions of a revised Texas Constitution which failed to be approved last summer for presentation this spring.

One article he expects to see presented deals with education. Another deals with the judi-

Snowmen, snow icecream and snowballs were only part of the fun Thursday for Canyon residents as they awoke to a three-inch cover. The snow, first of the new year for the area, provided such picturesque scenes as this home on Fourth Avenue only until about noon when high temperatures began dismantling the covering. Canyon received nearly an inch of moisture from rains and the snow last week.

Logjam of red tape stalls HUD request

The federal government may have the money and the will to give, but it's sure getting harder for local officials to take it.

Not that the local officials don't want it. It's just that logjam of red tape they have to contend with.

City officials, anxious to apply for a $760,000 six-year federal grant, called Washington one morning last week to request application forms for submitting the grant request properly. The request must be submitted to the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission for approval by Jan. 15.

They were astonished to learn that the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development, promulgator of the grant funds, does not yet have application forms printed for use.

If that's not bad enough, the federal officials said they don't know when they will have application forms available.

And, here's the kicker: The officials told City Admin. Asst. Tom Plumlee that they're thinking about changing the guidelines for application for the grant. Plumlee's spent most of his time for the past two months trying to comply with the current guidelines.

"They're (HUD) thinking of dropping the PRPC review," City Manager George Loudder said Thursday. "If they drop it we have 45 days to get our application ready. If they don't we only have 10 days. Can you believe this?"

Under current guidelines, a pre-application form is to be sent the regional planning commission by mid-month. There it will be reviewed and then returned to the city for more depth planning. Final submission to HUD is to come under the guidelines in April.

"This leaves us on high center," Loudder said.

Nevertheless, Plumlee and Loudder will continue planning for the application proposal for the first year of funding under the program. The city is scheduled to receive $31,000 for 1975 under current guidelines.

Loudder said no decisions have yet been made on specific programs the city will pursue for the first year of funding.

He said only minimal work will be done in the application on planning for future years' funding. The city is scheduled to receive $110,000 in fiscal 1976; $60,000 in 1977; $141,000 in 1978; $192,000 in 1979; and $226,000 in 1980.

The city manager said he and his staff are now studying several priority items brought up at last Monday night's public hearing, held to allow public input into the grant application request.

Fifty-five persons showed up for the public hearing, but more than three-fourths of those present were members of the Canyon Senior Citizens Association.

Plumlee said priority lists filled out by the hearing participants have been tallied and show that the top priority item for funding with the HUD money is facilities for senior citizens. A second priority was establishment of a child day-care facility.

Loudder said his staff is pursuing cost studies on each program recommended by the public hearing participants. But, he said, it seems unlikely that a child-care center would be feasible since the HUD guidelines place restrictions on such funding.

Loudder had suggested in the Monday session that a stepped-up code enforcement program for building and housing might be initiated during the first year of funding. He said Thursday that code enforcement will not be the only program recommended for the first year.

"Whatever we do, really, will be in preparation for the years to come," he said, since funding in future years is far more than the first year amount.

He said the first-year program will also be one which can be easily and successfully accomplished since succeeding years' funding will depend on the success of the initial plans.

Three-inch snow aids wheat crop in county

The old year went out in style and the new year started off right as far as Randall County farmers are concerned.

Freezing rain and then heavy snowfall left more than three-quarters of an inch of moisture in the county last week to replenish a somewhat depleted underground supply for winter wheat growth.

Three inches of snow fell during the night Wednesday and Canyon residents awoke to find more than just a ground cover. Temperatures rising above the freezing mark quickly melted much of the snow from slickened city streets and area highways.

Canyon gained .23 inches of moisture from the snow and that added to .36 inches gained on Monday from freezing rains. The city also received .03 inches on Tuesday.

The Thursday snow was the more beneficial because it was unaccompanied by winds.

County Agent John Brazzil said the moisture received in several packages since before Christmas will be of significant benefit to the well-developed

For city, hospital and schools

Local offices are up for grabs

County officials can take a breather this year, but their counterparts in city, school and hospital government will face elections this April.

Terms for two Canyon city commissioners are up for grabs this year, two school board members will end terms, four hospital board members will face re-election or end their service, and two county school board members will end terms.

No one has filed for any elective office yet this year. Deadlines for filing fall at the end of February and first of March.

Places on the Canyon city commission held by Dr. J. Pat Stephens and Dr. Willis Harrison will be open for competition this April. Dr. Manly Bryan, Jim Christopher and H.R. Fulton were re-elected last April for two-year terms.

Stephens, a political science professor at West Texas State University, is serving his first term on the commission after election in April 1973. A native of Post, Stephens holds a doctorate from the University of Missouri and is in charge of the public administration program at WTSU. He has not indicated whether he will seek re-election.

Harrison, a dentist, has served two terms on the commission and ran unopposed on the ballot in 1973. He has not indicated his intentions this year, either.

Likewise, there has been no mention of possible candidates for the two commission slots.

City commissioners run at-large.

Dr. Dudley Moore and Walter Graham are the two school board members whose terms expire in April.

School board terms are for three years. The election will be the first Saturday in April. Filing deadline is 30 days prior to the election.

Moore, a local physician, has served for six years on the school board and has been president of the body.

Graham, a long-time rancher in the southern part of the county, has served more than 20 years on the school board.

Neither board member has indicated whether he will seek re-election.

Four persons on the South Randall County Hospital Board will face term expirations this April. They are Mrs. Lois Hull, Vernon Harmon, Bill Sternenberg and George Blackwell.

The hospital board term is for two years and the election will be the first Saturday in April. Filing deadline for candidates is 30 days before the election.

Mrs. Hull, currently chairman of the board, has served on the body since its inception several years ago. Harmon and Sternenberg have also served since the board was formed. Blackwell was elected two years ago when he defeated O.H. Rahlfs.

One board election which will probably be the focus for more attention this year than before is the county school trustee campaign.

Terms of two trustees expire in April. Charles Purcell, who's served two years on the board, has not indicated whether he will seek re-election.

Don Marsh, an Amarillo accountant, is in a unique position on the board due to an unusual state law. Marsh's slot is up for grabs but there is confusion about how the slot is to be filled.

State law says that voters in Marsh's precinct cannot vote for a candidate to the county school board, since they live inside the Amarillo School District.

Marsh was appointed to fill the two-year term in 1973 when the law provisions were made known.

The school trustees, under the law, will have to appoint either Marsh for another two-year term or someone else.

Interest is expected to be high in the county school board race because of the split decision made in November concerning the annexation by Amarillo of 160-acres of land in the Canyon School District. Purcell voted against the annexation, but

Final decision due Monday on salaries

Randall County commissioners are expected to make a final decision Monday on how much they'll increase salaries for county employees for 1975.

Another executive session is scheduled for their regular meeting. Commissioners have met in at least three closed sessions in the past month to consider salary increases for county officials and employees. Their last closed meeting lasted more than six hours.

There was still no official word at week's end on how much employees could anticipate for the coming year. Nor was their any word on whether increases would be handled on an across-the-

To 'legalize' county annex

Simpson will carry bill

Although critical earlier, State Rep. Bob Simpson of Amarillo has agreed to carry a bill through the Texas legislature to allow several county offices to be located in a new South Amarillo courthouse annex.

Simpson, representative of the district which encompasses Randall County, said he will carry the local bill during the legislative session.

Simpson had been critical of county commissioners for beginning construction of the new courthouse annex in South Amarillo without positive assurance they could locate several county-level offices in the structure.

Commissioners had okayed construction of the $675,000 building to house branch offices for the county tax assessor, the justice of the peace and the sheriff. But, before the offices for the justice of the peace and the sheriff can be located in the annex, state law must be changed.

"I talked to Woody Pond (county judge) and George Dowlen (formerly district attorney) and determined that since it's being built it would be ridiculous for it not to be used for all the purposes," Simpson said last week.

He had previously questioned the advisability of constructing a building to house offices not authorized by state law.

So far, though, there is no bill for Simpson to carry in the legislature.

Pond said Dowlen, now district judge of the 181st district court, is to write a local bill for presentation to the legislature. New Dist. Atty. Randall Sherrod said he has not yet conferred with Dowlen about preparing the measure.

The legislative session begins Jan. 14.

Although as yet unwritten, the measure must be a local bill calling for an exception to state law which bans the location of county offices other than the tax office in branch structures. The law apparently would allow the county to place a branch sheriff's office and justice of the peace office in the Amarillo courthouse facility.

Two current laws speak to the annex issue. One allows construction of a branch tax office and the other prohibits branch offices of other county functions.

Before the bill can be considered in Austin, it must be published in The Canyon News at least 30 days prior to presentation to the legislature.

Even if the proposed law does not pass legislative muster, there is reason to believe county commissioners can go ahead and put the sheriff's branch office and the JP branch office in the Amarillo annex. Wording of the law simply prohibits construction of an annex specifically for those functions, but is silent on whether the offices can be moved into the annex after construction is complete.

The commissioners' action in approving construction of the annex without the necessary law has been criticized also by State Rep. Ben Bynum of Amarillo.

Bowl game a highlight for Moore

What could be greater for a college sophomore than standing out there at mid-field, millions of television viewers focused on his every move?

For Canyon's Bill Moore, the answer's simple — he wants to do it again next year. But, he wants to be more of a participant and he wants to be more successful.

Moore, son of Dr. Dudley Moore of Canyon, was an important member of the Baylor University team which went before national television cameras Wednesday for their first Cotton Bowl outing in the school's history.

While Baylor's performance was somewhat less than successful (the Bears lost by a 41-20 margin to Penn State), the game was a thrilling experience for Moore, a stand-out varsity athlete just two years ago for Canyon High School.

Moore took the field six times Wednesday for his team as punter and averaged 35 yards per kick.

Next year he wants to have a more active role and he believes the Bears can repeat their Southwest Conference championship.

With a four-year scholarship to the school he says he's always wanted to attend, Moore has a good chance of gaining a starting berth in the Bear backfield for the 1975 season.

That's where he proved his worth for the Canyon Eagles in 1972 as he carried the ball from various backfield positions.

Moore was recruited during his senior year by Baylor as a punter and wingback and last year as a freshman he punted and played wingback for the freshman squad.

Moore's chance for a place on the varsity team came during two-a-day drills last fall. During

Our World

Aging And Dying

By ANN BROWN

America and the civilized world mourns the loss of Jack Benny. But who can imagine Jack Benny a senile invalid?

An apparently healthy woman recently learned from a routine examination that she has terminal cancer. She wept for hours. It was no fear of death that caused her anguish; it was fear of the measures that could be used to keep her alive.

The woman has passed her three score and ten, and she is perfectly willing to leave this world for a better one. But she is terrified lest the money she and her husband have spent a lifetime accumulating will be wasted on torturous treatment that she does not want.

Many miracle medicines and surgical skills that bring healing, joy, and life itself to the young only prolong the agonies of the aged and terminally ill. Myriads of middle-aged people are guilt-ridden, and victims of family and community censure because they have placed aged parents in nursing homes instead of keeping them in their own homes as the parents did their parents.

A brief analysis of major scientific, political, and social changes in the past 40 years could ease many a troubled conscience.

Before the discovery of antibiotics and other life-prolonging techniques, when old people became ill they died.

Invalid parents might have spent a week, a month, or possibly six months in the homes of their children 40 years ago.

Now aged invalids can be kept alive from a year to 20 or more. This can create emotional, physical, and financial burdens few homes can survive.

It is usually beneficial for children to have to defer to the needs of ailing grandparents — for a few days, weeks, or even months.

But when the months stretch into years, and the grandparents absorb vital time and finances the parents need for their children, irreparable damage may be done to all three generations.

The women who were once grateful for the opportunity to "help with the sick" are now living on welfare or social security. To secure competent live-in help in the home is almost impossible.

An invalid in the home usually means the family must assume the entire responsibility, requiring at least one member of the family to stay home at all times. This disrupts family unity, work, worship, and recreation, and creates resentments.

Nurses spend 8 hours a day, 5 days a week caring for invalids on a purely impersonal basis.

A family spends 24 hours a day 7 days a week watching once-vigorous, vital loved ones degenerate into senile shadows of their former selves. It's a traumatic experience.

Old people usually obey orders from nurses and doctors without too much question or complaint. From their own children or grandchildren? Never!

Before anyone passes judgment on people who place invalids in nursing homes, or on the nursing homes for their methods of caring for those invalids, he should heed the Indian's classic prayer:

"Great Spirit, grant that I may not criticize my neighbor until I have walked a mile in his moccasins."

The aged invalid creates a burden for his family and for society, but most of all for himself.

An increasing number of doctors are becoming aware of the magnitude of this problem, and are discouraging the prolonging of life by artificial means after all hope for recovery is gone.

The patient himself can demand that he be allowed to die a natural death in dignity — provided he is conscious and rational when he learns death is inevitable.

One dying man, who did not want his body to outlive his mind, removed all the life-sustaining tubes and refused to allow them to be replaced. The expensive ordeal that could have tortured him, his family, and friends for months — or even years — ended peacefully in 24 hours.

Because death is inevitable, we spend time and money making provision for the best disposition of our possessions — all of which must be left behind.

Would it not be even wiser to make some timely arrangements for the best disposition of ourselves?

Let us all give thanks that the master of American comedy was spared a lingering, helpless old age, and pray that we might be so fortunate.

City To Eye Fire Plan

Canyon city commissioners will review a fire protection plan for the rural portions of Randall County during their regular Monday night meeting.

The plan, prepared by Canyon City Manager George Loudder and Randall County Commissioner Paul Lindsey, calls for the Canyon Volunteer Fire Department to become the central clearing-house for fire calls in the rural areas.

Commissioners will not be asked to take action on the plan, but simply to study it for future consideration.

Randall commissioners have given their stamp of approval to the proposal, which also involves fire units from Happy, Bushland, Tanglewood, Umbarger and Amarillo.

Other business scheduled for Monday night's session:

*Approval of a plat for Tierra Blanca subdivision, a new housing development in East Canyon. The plat has been pending for several weeks.

*A resolution enforcing Senate Bill 835 under the Texas Water Quality Act. Loudder reports that the city has been complying with the law for three years but must formally accept the resolution.

*Consideration of bids for a new vehicle for the water and sewer department.

*Consideration of appointing members to the city Planning and Zoning Commission. Terms of Joe Gidden, Bill Sternenberg and Murphy White expired on Jan. 1.

*Second reading of an ordinance granting Southwestern Public Service Co. a franchise to operate in the city.

The Hospital Stay

By CARROLL WILSON

Mutual friends called in the middle of the night to tell me a long-time friend, the Economy, was sick and in the hospital.

The sign on the door said "No Visitors," but I pushed it open and tip-toed into the darkened room to approach a white-clad nurse reading at the bedside.

"Shhh," she said as she rose from the chair and led me from the room into the hallway. "You can't disturb him now. He's had a relapse and he's resting."

"But I thought the Christmas season revitalized him and he was recovering nicely," I said.

"He did seem to recover somewhat," said the nurse, a tear in her eye, "and we had him sitting up in a wheelchair for several days. He seemed his old self, smiling and happy. He must have made a tremendous effort to cover his symptoms; today he's worse than ever."

"Will he make it?" I asked. "What are his chances? He's been an awfully good friend for many years, even though I've been irritated with him several times recently."

"Well," said the nurse, "he has surprising strength. We thought we'd lost him in the '30s and he bounced right back better than ever."

I told the nurse I wanted to talk with my friend's doctor and she left me outside the physicians' conference room down the hall. I started to go in, but heard voices inside and stopped to eavesdrop. I could tell the doctors were talking of my friend and his strange malady.

"I just don't know what to make of it," said one doctor. "He was so strong during the Vietnam war."

"Ah," admitted another physician, "but the symptoms were there. We just didn't diagnose his problem correctly."

"It's a complicated problem, all right," said another. "I think he just got overheated during the war and then it was a big letdown when he had to come home."

"No," said yet another, "he's obviously contracted something contagious and I think it's somehow related to the sudden drain of his energy. Just look at Britain and France and Germany and Italy and, well, I think we have to look at the bigger picture and admit we have the makings of a real epidemic."

"I don't know," said one doctor. "We've done everything we can to protect his environment. We've gotten tough on cleaning up the air and we're working on the water. We've made pretty sure that the toys he plays with, the clothes he wears and the car he drives are safe and he's protected."

"Maybe," said another physician, "maybe that's the problem. Maybe we've gone too far."

Another doctor piped in: "Initially, I thought his illness was psychosomatic — all in his mind. I thought maybe he was just depressed and perhaps a controlled and directed rehabilitation effort would bring him out of it. It just made him worse."

"I've been contemplating a little surgery," said one doctor, "just a neat incision to cut out some taxes. Maybe that would help him breathe easier."

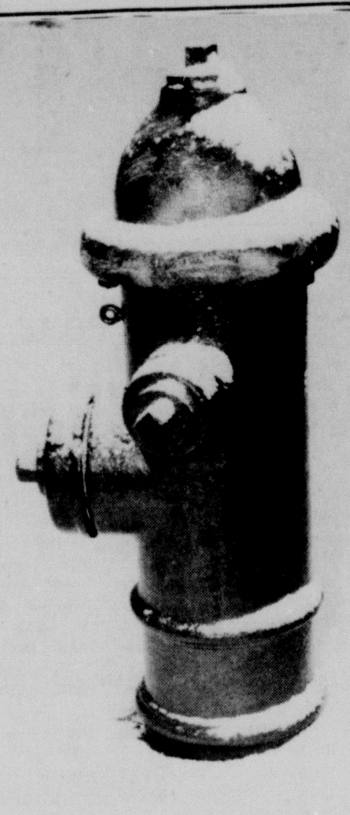
"I'm inclined to favor just the opposite," said another. "What he needs is a tax injection in the upper cerebrum. I think that'd stabilize his condition."

"I believe I agree that this thing may just be in his mind," intoned one doctor. "Why don't we just all go in there and tell him how healthy he looks and how nicely he's recovering and how he's going to be up and about in just a few days."

"No," said the head surgeon after listening to the comments. "We've got to get tough. We've got to lick this thing and we've all got to work together to do it. The time has come for action."

"Great," the doctors said in unison. "What's the plan?"

The head surgeon rose and started for the door. "Two aspirin every four hours, plenty of fruit juice and two days of bed rest," he said triumphantly.



WHITE CHRISTMAS DREAMING came true — but a day late as the feathery white stuff began falling early the day after. And the snows came back again for the New Year's holiday traffic.

An Opportunity

(An Editorial)

It seems almost futile for Canyon's senior citizens to be trying to raise $30,000 to purchase the old Neblett Hospital building for use as a center for their activities.

It seems almost needless, also.

The senior citizens of Canyon and Randall County are a terrific resource, not just in numbers but in terms of experience and knowledge. If figures quoted recently by Dutch Cleavinger, president of the Canyon senior citizens group, are accurate they indicate more than 2000 persons in our county are over the age of 65. These folks have seen a good deal of life, they've lived through some interesting times and they have learned some valuable lessons.

In short, the county's senior citizens have something to offer the community. More important, they have something to offer a specific community in Canyon, a community which needs their numbers as well as their experience.

That community is West Texas State University, which so far has failed to take any overt steps to make a return to the college campus an attractive prospect for those persons over 65.

Amarillo College, while taking an initiative in the area of attracting senior citizens, has not pre-empted the field. That community college has made available a large downtown building for senior citizen use at a token fee. That college has made efforts to bring senior citizens onto the campus for refreshers.

The AC experience simply indicates such an effort can be made.

West Texas State University has facilities — the old student union building, for example — which would be ample for use by the county's senior citizens. The university also has programs which could prove attractive to the elderly, if only the elderly were given some vehicle to identify with the campus.

It will be a shame if the area's senior citizens are forced to spend $30,000 on a structure they might not need. It will be more of a shame if they cannot raise the money and must continue in inadequate facilities.

West Texas State University holds the solution to problems which confront both senior citizens and the university itself. Now's the time for a plan to be brought forward by the administration.

County Typewriters

(An Editorial)

Americans traditionally want the best. They want the best education for their children, the best television set, the best car, the best food.

But, the American family usually tempers its desire for the best with the capabilities of the pocket-book. They want the best education for their children that they can afford to pay for. They want the best television set they can afford to buy. They make do within their income.

For some strange reason, this tempering effect does not carry over into some governmental units.

Randall County officials have grown enormously enamoured of the IBM typewriter, which if it is not the best machine on the market, it is certainly one of the most expensive.

In the past year, more than 10 new typewriters have been purchased by county commissioners. They've all been IBM and they've cost the county around $700 each.

So strong is the love of IBM typewriters, that when commissioners seek competitive bids for the machines they write specifications which purposely exclude other competing bids.

In the vast majority of cases, the commissioners have purchased the Cadillac of the typewriter world to do jobs the Model A could do.

Except in the county judge's office and the district attorney's office, where bundles of type-written paperwork are generated weekly, there is no need for a Cadillac typewriter in, say, the county clerk's office, where records are typed for preservation, or the district clerk's office where other records are typed.

In fact, non-electric typewriters, which would cost far under the $700 IBM price-tag, would probably do nicely for most county offices. Only relatively recently have county offices gone from hand-written entries in the record books to type-written entries. Potter County's clerk still uses hand-written entries.

That is not to advocate a return to horse-and-buggy recording. It is simply to say that where horse-and-buggy methods are adequate, one need not overreact with space-age technology.

County commissioners would, no doubt, decline if Sheriff Cliff Longest asked them to allow him to purchase new Cadillacs rather than Chevies or Fords for his department. They would probably also decline if County Auditor Betty Hodges wanted to hire a computer to do simple addition and subtraction problems.

Yet, they acquiesce when it comes to typewriters. In a day when the county has trouble balancing a budget, is it too much to ask that county employees forego the luxury of their super-machines and join other Americans who are trying to live within their budgets?

Letter To The Editor

Why IBM Machines

Jan. 3, 1975

Dear Carroll,

It has been brought to my attention by your newspaper that Mrs. Audrey Bruse wants three more IBM typewriters. Making the County the owner of seven new IBM typewriters in less than four months. If I read your article right the IBM Selectric typewriter, which is the one Mrs. Bruse wants, goes for about $700. This would have the public paying $4,900 for typewriters in the last four months. Now if Mrs. Bruse would like to tell the taxpayers of Randall County why she must have a typewriter with a non-movable carriage and both pica and elite type faces which is costing about $400 more per machine than one low bidder I am sure we will listen with open ears.

Thoughtfully yours,
Don Stribling

Flu No Problem Here

That winter-time culprit, the flu, has begun its annual siege in Canyon, but local physicians say the malady is not as pervasive as in the past.

Doctors report they are receiving more patients complaining of flu-type symptoms, particularly young and elderly persons.

The flu has struck in Claredon, where newspaper reports indicate many townsmen downed by the illness.

The flu has had dramatic impact in Canyon in recent years, causing early closing of West Texas State University in December 1968, and a day off for school children here last January.

Natural Gas for the Future

I'm pleased to report to our customers that Pioneer purchased more gas during 1974 than we used. This new gas will be available for future use, of course.

As you know, Pioneer is having to pay more for new gas than we've ever paid before. The competition for the gas produced in our area has never been so fierce. But the higher prices are resulting in lots of new exploration and production. I know of numerous wells which could not have been drilled at prices prevailing three years ago.

The increase in field prices means that our customers will have to pay more for the energy they use in their homes — gas and electricity — but, more important, it means he'll have the gas he needs.

All energy will cost more in the future but gas will remain your best energy buy.

New Chaplain Assigned Here

The Rt. Rev. Willis R. Henton, Episcopal Bishop of Northwest Texas, has assigned the Rev. James P. Haney of Odessa to serve as Episcopal chaplain at West Texas State University in Canyon.

In addition to serving as priest in charge of the congregation of St. George's Chapel, which meets at the Episcopal Center of the WTSU United Campus Ministry, the Rev. Mr. Haney will join the faculty of the department of Bible of the WTSU College of Arts and Sciences.

The Rev. Mr. Haney, who will begin conducting Sunday services in Canyon on January 12, has been associate rector of St. John's Episcopal Parish in Odessa.

A native of Pittsburgh, Pa., he holds a bachelor of science degree in petroleum engineering from the University of Pittsburgh and a bachelor of divinity degree from the Episcopal Theological School in Cambridge, Mass. He has recently been working toward a master's degree in psychology at University of Texas of the Permian Basin in Odessa.

Before moving to Odessa in 1971, he served three years as a Navy chaplain, including a year at Chu Lai in Vietnam.

He and his wife, Nancy, are parents of three boys, aged eleven, nine and eight.

The Rev. Mr. Haney succeeds the Rev. T. James Bethell at the United Campus Ministry Center in Canyon. The Rev. Mr. Bethell has become rector of an Episcopal parish in Topeka, Kan.

Tax Relief Available

Canyon taxpayers over the age of 65 have until April 30 to apply for their $3000 homestead tax exemption for the coming year.

The exemption must be sought each year by those 65 or over. Application for the exemption may be made at the Canyon-School tax office in the courthouse. Proof of age and ownership of homestead is required.

Randall County taxpayers who have already signed up for the exemption once need not sign up again.

SNOWFOLKS were built by enterprising youngsters throughout Canyon on Thursday, Jan. 2, when snow blanketed the city before the warm afternoon sunshine melted most of the snow away. These enterprising youngsters named their snowfolks "Mr. and Mrs. Texas" and were built by neighbors: Britt Edwards (front) and Ted Prichard and Melissa Edwards (in back). Prichard is the son of the Harold J. Prichards at 1201 Brookhaven and the Darrell Edwards of 1203 Brookhaven are parents of Britt and Melissa.

School Bells Signal End Of Holidays

School bells will ring Monday morning, Jan. 6, as students of Canyon Independent School District return to the classroom routine of lessons at the regular hour.

Students will have brief holidays again on February 3 and February 28 while teachers have in-service-workdays.

Next major holidays for the school system will be the Easter break from March 22-31 with classes resuming on April 1.

Donnells Visit During Holidays

Mr. and Mrs. Reeves Donnell have returned from a 4000 mile winter vacation trip to Miramar, Fla. (near Miami) where they visited with their daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Manning, and granddaughter, Shawna. While in Florida the Donnells saw several sights including Key West, and "just mobs of folks especially from the northern states."

board basis. Last year, all employees and officials received a 5.5 per cent pay hike to keep up with the increase in the cost-of-living. Commissioners had programmed a 6 per cent across-the-board hike into their budget estimate for 1975, but found that figure inadequate in light of national cost-of-living increases.

County elected officials met with commissioners during their six-hour executive session recently and had told The News prior to that meeting they planned to ask for major revisions in the county pay scheme.

In years past, the county has not had a standard pay system. Nor has there been an automatic system for longevity pay or merit raises.

County Judge Woody Pond would not disclose Friday whether commissioners plan to give themselves raises for the new year. Commissioners now make $520 per month plus $100 per month for car allowance.

Pond did say the commissioners have discussed and will probably implement a portion of a pay plan outlined by Bill Francis, the county's outside auditor from Amarillo. Francis spent a good part of last summer meeting individually with county officials to put together a pay plan and job classification system. When presented commissioners in early fall, they accepted the proposal but have said nothing of the plan since then.

The Francis plan has been criticized privately by county officials who have said they feel it is not adequate or competitive with private business or other county pay plans.

The plan calls for institution of longevity pay at the rate of $5 per month for each year of service after Jan. 1, 1974.

It also outlines job categories and the pay grades or levels in each category.

Pond has said the county treasury has adequate funds for substantive raises for county employees this year. Although the official budget document okayed by commissioners last August is in the red, adjustments due to a larger-than-anticipated tax roll have put the budget in the black by several thousand dollars for the first time in the 1970s.

Other items scheduled for discussion by commissioners Monday include appointment of members to the Randall County Historical Survey Committee and appointment of representatives to the Potter-Randall County Child Welfare Board.

The commissioners are also expected to open bids for purchase of three new typewriters for the county tax office. Adding machines and calculators and office furniture bids will also be opened.

wheat crop in the county.

"The top soil had been dry and this snow is a good thing for winter wheat," he said. "We've had good growth and now have strong plants and we had used some of the moisture accumulated in the fall."

No major traffic problems were reported due to the snow, which fell atop frozen rain to make driving a slippery task early Thursday.

the second or third day of practice, Moore outshone the varsity punter and was selected by the coaching staff to take a varsity position.

It was Moore's ability to get the ball off quickly and to hang it high to allow for good defensive coverage which commended him to the coaches.

While he punted throughout the year for the varsity, he was unable to gain the wingback position. Two seniors had the position tied up.

And, now Moore has his eye set on the wingback slot on the varsity next fall.

"I missed the hitting part this year," he said. "I'm looking forward to next year and I'll see if I can get in there."

Nevertheless, Moore believes he played a key role in the successful season of the Bears this past fall.

He says he practiced his punting each day with a dozen to 15 kicks, and then concentrated on wingback practice with the varsity offensive unit.

During the season Moore averaged 37 yards per punt.

His first punt attempt came in the Bear's outing against Oklahoma University in the season opener and Moore found himself not only kicking the ball but catching the receiver as the tackler.

Moore proved his worth throughout the season and admits now that it was with some nervousness that he approached the Cotton Bowl outing.

It was the first Baylor performance on national television and Moore admits the thought crossed his mind that he might bobble the ball.

Penn State, he said, "had one heck of a punt rush." But, none of his punts were blocked.

In fact, only one Moore punt was blocked through the season and that came in the Baylor-Texas Tech game.

"That's a weird feeling getting one blocked," he said. But, the key is concentration and an eye on the ball.

Moore feels the Bears will repeat their successful season next year. He sees good replacements coming up for the graduating members of the squad, and of course, hopes he'll be among those at wingback.

The House Judiciary Committee has already rehashed the Constitutional Convention effort on the judiciary article and is prepared to present it during the session to go on the ballot next November as a constitutional amendment.

Another major issue will involve formation of a public utilities commission in the state.

Sherman said the recent publicity surrounding the dealings of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. in the state along with the gas scandal in the Southern portion of the state make it a virtual certainty that there will be strong support for a utilities commission.

Canyon city commissioners have gone on record in favor of a limited utilities commission with each city having the option of whether to go to the commission for rate regulation.

The Texas Municipal League voted recently to oppose formation of such a commission, but Houston will be pushing hard for one.

Water importation may come up again for discussion and consideration, Sherman said, although he is unsure what direction the discussion will go.

Legislators will be forced to deal with changes in the youth correctional system during the session, due to a federal court ruling which virtually put Gatesville out of business, the senator said.

Sherman said he believes legislators may be a little more generous this year on an issue closer to home — salaries for state employees, particularly college professors.

"I think I see more relief there," he said.

Simpson will not only be facing what promises to be a heavy legislative workload, but will also be trying to become familiar with the hows and wherefores of being a legislator.

The new representative said he currently has no plans for legislation he will personally sponsor, but will watch and listen and participate when he can be effective.

Library Friends Being Organized For Volunteers At Charter Meet

The official organizational meeting for all residents of the community to join a 'Friends of the Library' to aid and assist the Canyon City Library is scheduled at 2 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 9.

All residents are invited to become charter members of the Friends of the Library at the meeting to be held at the parlor of the United Methodist Church of Canyon.

The Friends of the Library was discussed recently with representatives of a similar project in Amarillo and plans and designing of the local group will be following the guidelines of that group.

Residents attending the organizational meeting may join as charter members of the 'Friends' and will have their charter memberships listed in a permanent record book at the Canyon City Library.

Membership fees include $1 for individuals for a year's membership; $5 for club and association memberships; $10 for sustaining yearly memberships; and life memberships are for $100 or more. Charter membership fees will be collected at the Jan. 9 meeting.

The 'Friends of the Library' will be a voluntary assistance type program to help with arranging book displays, assist in cataloging and arranging books, and serve as a stimulation point for the public support of Canyon City Library.

Projects for improvement of the city library are already in the planning stage including an upcoming 'book sale.' The sale will consist of used and/or gift books where the library already has such an edition.

Temporary chairman of the Friends of the Library is Mrs. Charles Harter, who will preside at the Jan. 9 meeting. The Friends project was begun as an effort through the Woman's Book Club under the guidance of Mrs. Joe Findley, WBC president, and is also being guided by the Canyon City Library Board with Clair Kuehn as board chairman.

"Some of our hopes for the Friends of the Library," according to Mary Huntington, librarian, "are that we will be able to furnish local clubs and organizations with book reviews through the library."

"We also want to encourage young people of the community toward using the library and investigating librarianship as their future careers," noted a representative.

143 Man-Hours Spent On Fires

Canyon volunteer firemen answered 15 alarms in Canyon and in rural Randall County during December and spent a total of 143 man-hours fighting the fires.

Statistics prepared by Fire Capt. Joe Rice indicate the volunteers responded to four alarms at buildings within the city limits and seven non-building fires in the city. They fought one county building fire and three non-building fires in the rural areas.

During December 1973, the firemen fought 11 fires in the city and rural area and spent 136 man-hours at the blazes.

Since April, the firemen have answered 123 total alarms and have spent a total of 1573 man-hours fighting the fires.

Sixty-five volunteers reported for two drills during the month of December.

New License Tags Due For Locals

AUSTIN — If all goes according to plan, the Texas motor vehicle license plate might soon outlast the motor vehicle that "wears" it.

Beginning February 1, the majority of motor vehicles operating in Texas may be eligible to use the new "multi-year" license plate, renewable annually for five years of driving. According to Bob Townsley, Director of the Highway Department's Motor Vehicle Division, approximately 9.2 million renewal notices are already in the mail to vehicle owners announcing the fact.

"Motorists will notice no change in the registration procedure this year," said Townsley. "Only the license plate to be issued will be different."

Instead of the usual metal plate, a heavier, non-corrosive steel will be used for greater endurance. Also, the plate will be reflectorized and will feature black letters and numerals on a white field, considered by experts to be the most easily readable color combination.

"The real change in registration procedure will come in 1976," explained the Highway Department official. Next year, instead of buying a new license plate, owners will purchase a 1-by 2-inch adhesive-type validation tag that will be placed in the debossed upper left corner of the plate. In 1977, the tag will be stuck in the upper right corner to cover the debossed "75," and alternated for the ensuing years. Townsley said the tags cannot be easily removed without deterioration, a part of the plan to discourage vandalism or theft.

The "multi-year" plate to be used in Texas is almost identical to the one adopted by California some years ago. Specifications for plate design, letters and numerals were obtained from that state after careful study by Highway Department officials. "We found California to be completely successful with its 'multi-year' licensing system and it came closest to the 'new look' we wanted for Texas," said Director Townsley.

The 1975 Texas "version" is expected to cost the state 44 cents per plate to produce, almost double the manufacturing cost for the '74 plate. The difference in costs being attributed to different materials and plate design. However, the validation tags to be used beginning in 1976 will run some three cents apiece. According to Townsley, the state will realize an $8.5 million savings in additional revenue from using the semi-permanent plates for the five-year period.

Some motorists will recall this is not the first time "multi-year" license plates have been used in Texas. During the war years 1943 and 1944, small metal tabs were issued to renew the 1942 plate. Then again in 1947, when there was a shortage of metal plates, windshield stickers were issued as evidence of the payment of registration fees.

Townsley praised the convenience the five-year plate will afford motorists. "Especially those who find changing license plates annually a chore!" He reminded, "Certain classes of motor vehicles will still require annual purchase of plates. These include radio operators, dealers, state officials and those passenger cars displaying 'personalized' plates."

Motorists using the new plates will notice the use of vowels for the first time. Since 1965, when the "English" system of a three-letter prefix and a two to three digit basic number was adopted, only consonants were used. Townsley says there are just too many vehicles in Texas to allow consonants only. The first 1975 license plate will be AAA 10 to be issued in Bastrop County.

Also for the first time, a new five-year travel trailer plate will be available. This classification includes all camper trailers and house trailer-type vehicles which are (1) not in excess of 6000 pounds gross weight or (2) not in excess of 8 feet wide or 55 feet in overall length when measured in combination with the towing vehicle, regardless of weight. The registration fee is based on actual weight including all furnishings. Annual license plates and movement permits will be available for mobile homes and house trailer-type vehicles exceeding these specifications.

Annual registration fees for motor vehicle owners will remain the same as in the past — $12.30 for vehicles weighing up to 3500 pounds; $22.30 for vehicles weighing 3501 to 4500 pounds; $30.30 for vehicles weighing 4501 to 6000 pounds; vehicles weighing 6001 pounds or more are charged at the rate of 55 cents per hundred pounds of weight.

Motorists are encouraged to register their vehicles early and avoid the "last minute" rush. Registrants may apply by mail immediately, or "in person" at their county tax office and substations beginning February 1. Mail applicants are reminded to return the entire renewal notice along with their payment and one dollar per vehicle to cover postage and handling. Allow at least 30 days for delivery of plates. The registration deadline is midnight, April 1.

Birthday Celebration Honors Lessie Stevens

A birthday celebration honoring Lessie Ann Stevens was held Friday, Jan. 3, as friends and relatives joined Mrs. Stevens for an open house and reception at her home, 800 4th Street.

The 89th birthday of Mrs. Stevens was celebrated with a special cake ringed in pink roses with blue and green accents which was served to guests. A lace cloth covered the table which was accented with a bouquet of pink rosebuds, white crystal mums and pink gigi carnations arranged in a silver footed bowl.

Lime frosted punch was served from a crystal punchbowl by family members and a silver coffee service completed the setting as the birthday occasion was celebrated.

The former Lessie Ann Loden was born January 3, 1886 and came to Canyon in the mid-30's where she and her late husband, Dudley D. Stevens, raised their five children. The Stevens Floral Company was established in those early years and throughout this past summer, she has maintained an active interest and involvement in the company.

Mrs. Stevens has three sons, Roy Joe of Dallas, Minard of Las Vegas, Nev., and Piner Stevens of Canyon. Two of the Stevens children; a daughter, Mrs. Muriel Harrison of Lubbock, and a son, Lydle Stevens of Dimmitt, are deceased.

Descendants of Mrs. Stevens also include 13 grandchildren, 15 great-grandchildren and one great-great grandson.

Music, Marionette Concert Set Mon. For City Audience

Canyon Community Concert Association will Monday, Jan. 6, present a performance of LLORDS' "International," an adult oriented music and marionette concert theatre. The performance is scheduled for 8 p.m. at the Branding Iron Theatre at West Texas State University.

CCA members will be admitted with their membership cards and reciprocity Community Concerts members of other communities are also invited to attend. The Canyon membership drive for Community Concerts is held annually during the fall months.

Daniel Llords, solo marionettiste, is the first American marionette threatre to appear in not just one but in 10 international invitational festivals in Europe and the first and only marionette theatre for adults to tour in concert around-the-world not once, but four times!

Participation in the Braunschweiger Woche des Internationalen Puppenspiels is by coveted invitation only. The first and only American so honored is Daniel Llords whose performance of CONCERTHEATRE was acclaimed as "the summit of the marionette art which will remain unforgettable." His performance at the First International Festival of Puppetry in Great Britain led to a "limited season" (twice extended) in London's West End — The Broadway of England!

But the first such tour was only the beginning. The climax of his second world tour (after being presented with Persian carpets following his performances in Tehran) was being selected to represent his native United States at the renowned International Festival in Munich, Germany.

On his most recent world tour alone, Daniel Llords was invited to present CONCERTHEATRE for adults at eight international invitational festivals. Unfortunately he could not accept all of these bids. Two of the festivals in whose participation he felt most honored were the "Bergen International Music Festival" in Norway and the famous and highly respected "Vienna Festival" in Austria where he gave a series of concerts as part of the Festival of World Puppet Theatres in the theatre of the new Museum of the Twentieth Century.

An American Ambassador praised Mr. Llords' work with "As a host, I am honored; as an American I am proud." In the Far East, there were flowers upon his arrival, at intermission and at the end of every concert and again at the airport when he and the puppets flew on.

LLORDS' "INTERNATIONAL" begins with classical symphonic music and, by definition, LLORDS' "INTERNATIONAL" is truly a concert.

He uses his own original designs for the visual interpretation of symphonic classics and physically creates the heads, hands, bodies, faces and costumes for the more than 800 lavish and elaborate marionette figures necessary to make his conceptions visually manifest to the audience. Everything seen on stage — including the stage itself — is designed and made by Daniel Llords.

A marionette ballet of spectacular proportions for the "adult mind and mature appreciation" either in solo recital to especially edited tape recordings or as soloist with live symphony orchestra. Indeed, here is almost another "first:" the re-awakened interest in live symphony and marionettes in combined concert has been credited to this "Segovia of the marionette strings," this "Paganini of puppetry."

Certainly LLORDS' "INTERNATIONAL" is not a "puppet show;" it is not a "marionette show;" it is not a "show" at all but a happy-making phenomenon for adults called CONCERTHEATRE.

Double Ring Ceremonies Pledged By Miss Viki Cooper-Lynn Salmon

Miss Viki Janette Cooper and Jerry Lynn Salmon exchanged vows in a double ring ceremony Tuesday, Dec. 31. The rites were performed at Joseph A. Hill Memorial Chapel in Canyon by Dwayne Dennis, minister of the University Church of Christ in Canyon.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W.A. Cooper, Jr., of Canyon. She holds a BS degree in Elementary Education from WTSU where she was a member of Alpha Chi and Kappa Delta Pi.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin C. Salmon are the parents of the bridegroom. He is a graduate of Stephen F. Austin State University in Nacogdoches, where he earned his BS in forestry.

Stephen Rhodes and Mrs. Gary Storrs were the vocalists, with Mrs. Glenn Dowlen accompanying on the organ. Selections included The Twelfth of Never, Follow Me, For Baby, For Baby, and My Own True Love.

Light blue and white bows and bells decorated the ends of the pews. Blue tapers were set in one 15-candle and two 7-candle arches. The altar table had an arrangement of blue and white chrysanthemums and greenery.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal wedding gown of Chantilly lace over bridal taffeta designed with rounded neckline, natural waist which formed a "V", long tapered sleeves, and bouffant skirt.

A ruffle of matching lace complemented the neckline and sleeves. Rows of ruffles on the skirt fell in waterfall fashion. The full back of the gown ended in a sweeping chapel length train.

Her fingertip-length veil of imported illusion was held by a Juliet coif covered in pearls. She carried a crescent bouquet of blue and white mums, white baby roses, and baby's breath.

Miss Niki Sherley, cousin of the bride from Megargel, Tex., served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Carolyn Sherley of Megargel, Miss Rhonda Hales of Canyon, and Mrs. Richard Dickerson of Rotan. The attendants wore gowns of light blue interwoven with silver and accented by royal blue velvet bolero jackets. They carried white and blue mums accented with baby's breath and royal blue ribbons in silver and crystal baskets.

The candlelighter, Miss Judy Cooper, sister of the bride, wore a bell-sleeved, floor length gown of light blue crepe. Blue and white miniature mums accented her hair.

Steve Russell of Canyon was best man. Groomsmen were Sandy Hair of Amarillo, Stuart Downing of Canyon, and Sherman McCarter of Canyon. Andy and Ken Cooper, brothers of the bride, served as ushers.

The ceremony was followed by a reception at the new University Church of Christ Fellowship Hall. The table was skirted by bridal illusion, and topped with light blue lace.
